Introduction

Gaining recognition with BTEC Higher Nationals

This new edition of the BTEC Higher National Professional Recognition and Progression Directory has been revised and broadened in scope since the previous edition – with regular updates maintained via our website.

The Directory identifies the professional bodies, industry associations and the respective BTEC Higher National qualifications for which there is defined exemption from examinations or other professional body requirements in the United Kingdom. The list is not exhaustive nor prescriptive and there are many other progression opportunities available, in the UK and worldwide.

BTEC Higher National Diplomas and Higher National Certificates (HNDs and HNCs) have particular resonance with many business and industry professionals and human resource practitioners, as many have themselves undertaken and experienced these qualifications, and understand the core values and benefits of them.

BTEC Higher Nationals provide a practical, real-world approach to learning and skills development alongside a key theoretical background. They continue to be developed and updated with and for industry, and in the response to the needs of learners. This ensures that learners gain maximum benefit from their work whilst qualifying. This could be readiness for the workplace or continued study at the next level whether in an academic environment or a more specialist vocational area. BTEC qualifications range from Entry Level to Level 8 on the National Qualifications Framework (NQF). They offer natural progression along a vocational path, from and to academic qualifications and university.

HNDs and HNCs are based in the UK on the relevant National Occupational Standards laid down by the respective standard-setting bodies, such as the Sector Skills Councils. Additionally many multi-national and UK-based companies recognise and value BTEC Higher Nationals.

Progression to Degree

Edexcel's academic and vocational qualifications allow students to progress to university and Higher Education Institutions in many countries.

BTEC Higher Nationals are an ideal alternative progression route. There are many examples of students studying their BTEC Higher National locally before entering the second or even final year of a degree in another country, including the UK (for international students), USA and Australia.

In the UK students graduating from HND/HNC programmes are able to progress to Honours Degree programmes, but the requirements will vary according to the receiving Institution. A BTEC HND is normally given 240 credits and BTEC HNC 150 credits.

Progressing to Employment

BTEC Higher National Diplomas (HNDs) and BTEC National Certificates (HNCs), are designed for the workplace as well as for university.

There are large numbers of students who want to finish studying and obtain a good job, without spending three years at university. BTEC qualifications provide the specialist knowledge, skills and confidence to make an immediate impact in the modern workplace.

BTEC qualifications are both respected and demanded in the workplace. We can also be sure that they are relevant because we design our qualifications with the input and support of leading industries. For example, students wishing to study an HND in Telecommunications may like to know that Edexcel consulted with key players such as BT and Siemens when designing the qualification. This process ensures that employers can trust our qualifications.

“An HNC or HND is a good qualification to have as a springboard into engineering. It opens new doors for employees and gives them the confidence and knowledge to tackle bigger and better things as they mature.”

Alan Buchanan, HR Manager for Graduate Recruitment for BAE Systems

Not only do we have close associations with employers, we also work with professional bodies to ensure that HND holders can gain exemptions from other programmes of study, as well as counting towards memberships of other organisations.

“Our close links with employers have demonstrated how important such qualifications are. Many of our students have come to us with HNCs and HNDs, which exempt them from the first year of the CIM qualification programme. The communication key skills they develop, as well as their ability to work with others, provide an important platform for further development with the CIM.”

Dr Heather Davison, Chartered Institute of Marketing

Recognising achievement

BTEC HND and HNCs are awarded by Edexcel, and under licence through a number of UK universities and higher education institutions. Additionally many BTEC Higher Nationals are delivered in further education colleges and other centres in the UK and internationally.

Holders of BTEC HNDs and HNCs awards can show the two-part certification they receive on successful completion of their studies. For the BTEC Higher Nationals, this consists of a certificate stating the award of the full qualification, where it was studied and the name of the candidate. The second component is known as a Notification of Performance; this contains similar information about the candidate and the place of study, but also lists the units studied and the grade achieved for each – key to would-be employers and university admissions tutors. For centres under the Edexcel HN Licence Agreement the award is of that institution and will incorporate a transcript of the grades achieved.

Many centres celebrate the achievements of their students with Award Ceremonies. There is ceremonial dress for such occasions, which can be hired or purchased (if the event is organised through the college or university) The academic wear for those who have achieved a BTEC HND or HNC is:

- black gown
- red hood, fully lined, with mid-blue
- black hat.

These may be obtained through the specialist outfitters, Ede and Ravenscroft Ltd. Their website is www.edeandravenscroft.com.

Professional bodies and industry associations

Edexcel's qualifications are recognised by both employers and professional organisations. The recognition of BTEC Higher National are a way for students to prepare for jobs and careers in their chosen field through membership of relevant professional bodies and industry associations.

Some UK based professional bodies provide recognition of prior learning for Edexcel qualifications. This means students may be exempt from completing some units of their own professional body qualifications associated with membership.

The information provided is given in good faith. It is the professional bodies who will actually decide whether to accept your individual qualifications. If any questions concerning the nature of the exemptions and requirements arise, the body concerned should be contacted.

Sector Skills Councils

Sector Skills Councils (SSCs) are independent, UK-wide organisations developed by groups of influential employers in industry or business sectors of economic or strategic significance. SSCs are employer-led and actively involve trade unions, professional bodies and other stakeholders in the sector. SSCs are licensed by the Secretary of State for Education and Skills, in consultation with Ministers in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, to tackle the skills and productivity needs of their sector throughout the UK.

SSCs are responsible for the National Occupational Standards (NOCs). National Occupational Standards are statements of the skills, knowledge and understanding needed in employment and clearly define the outcomes of competent performance. They are developed by representatives of employment sectors on a UK-wide basis and inform vocational qualifications. They can also be used for training, appraisal, recruitment and retention planning.

There are NOCs covering almost every occupation in the UK, from accounting to hairdressing and from footwear and leather goods manufacturing to herbal medicine.

Edexcel works closely with the relevant SSC in the development of all qualifications, and the BTEC suites of qualifications are based, where applicable, on the National Occupational Standard.
